Increased mortality risk and associated factors among patients with eating disorders in an Italian National Health System-based cohort: a nationwide population-based study. The aim of this study was to evaluate the clinical characteristics, medical and surgical complications, and health outcome in patients with anorexia nervosa (AN) and bulimia nervosa (BN) treated in an Italian National Health System (NHS) hospital, and to investigate the independent predictors of death. The study involved patients diagnosed at the Agostino Gemelli Hospital between January 2008 and December 2014. All subjects were followed up for a median of 23.2 months and their records were reviewed for comorbidities, adverse events, and death. Cox-regression model was used to identify factors associated with mortality during the follow-up. A total of 174 patients (mean [SD] age, 23.3 [8.05] years; 56.4% female) were followed up (median [range] follow-up, 23.2 [0-57] months). At the end of follow-up, 71 (40.7%) patients had died, but only 15 (8.5%) deaths were attributed to AN-BN. The estimated mortality rate for AN and BN was 6.0 and 0.2 per 1000 patient-years, respectively. The only factor associated with increased mortality was diabetes mellitus (HR, 3.13; 95% CI, 1.23-7.98; $p = 0.018$). Only two patients in the study underwent surgical interventions for AN. Patients with AN-BN suffer from poor prognosis. Early diagnosis and treatment of comorbidities are important steps to prevent mortality. "Why do we need to go back? It is their country, it is not our country. It is their problem and not our problem," Israel's Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said in a heated political debate on Fox News Channel. Netanyahu, who was visiting Israel from New York on Thursday, was answering a question posed by host Tucker Carlson about the alleged Syrian government's chemical attack against rebel forces near the town of Khan Sheikhoun in Idlib province. "With all due respect, we are not the world's police," the Israeli prime minister argued. "Syria doesn't call when it wishes us to be involved in their civil war. We don't tell Iran what to do, or they don't tell
